Welcome to the United States immigrants.

Immigration is important because the immigrants do all of the non-skilled jobs. People in the US don't want to do that kind of work, but people in other countries will gladly do those jobs. The reason for this is because those jobs pay way more than the jobs in their old country. We need to keep immigration in order to have a very good economy.
Welcome to the United States immigrants.

Immigration is important because the immigrants do all of the non-skilled jobs. People in the US don't want to do that kind of work, but people in other countries will gladly do those jobs. The reason for this is because those jobs pay way more than the jobs in their own country. We need to keep immigration in order to have a very good economy.
1st wave of immigration

Caseism.com

- When: 1609-1775
- Where they came from: England, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, etc.
- Why did they come: Adventure, religious persecution, and hopes for a brighter economic future.
2nd wave of immigration

- When: 1820-1860
- Where they come from: Ireland, Germany, and China.
- Why did they come: They came because of the potato famine and the gold rush.

3rd wave of immigration

- When: 1880-1920
- Where they came from: Many Asian countries including Japan and China.
- Why did they come: They came for job opportunities and freedom of religion.
3rd wave of immigration

- When: 1880-1920
- Where they came from: Many Asian countries including Japan and China.
- Why did they come: They came for job opportunities and freedom of religion.

Caseism.com
Caseism.com

4th wave of immigration

• When: 1965 - present
• Where they came from: Europe, Asia, and Hispanic countries.
• Why did they come: They came to get the US benefits that are not available in their home countries.
Caseism.com

A push factor is a negative aspect or condition that motivates one to leave, especially in one's country, region, organization, religion, etc. Examples are:

- no say in government
- no religious freedom
- there is a war
- there are no more jobs available.

Pull factors

Cultural impact

Caseism.com

A pull factor is something concerning the country to which a person migrates. It is generally a benefit that attracts people to a certain place. For example:

- there are a lot of jobs
- you have a say in government
- you have religious freedom
- the American dream
- a good thing about the cultural impact of immigration is that it could bring new culture into our country. An example is they could bring new food and restaurants. This adds new cultural mix, which makes our country better.
- a bad thing about the cultural impact of immigration is that this could also lead to conflict. People might discriminate a certain race and that would not be good.
Pull factors

Caseism.com

A pull factor is something concerning the country to which a person migrates. It is generally a benefit that attracts people to a certain place. For example:

- there are a lot of jobs
- you have a say in government
- you have religious freedom
- the american dream
Cultural impact

Caseism.com

- A good thing about the cultural impact of immigration is that it could bring new culture into our country. An example is they could bring new food and restaurants. This adds new cultural mix, which makes our country better.
- A bad thing about the cultural impact of immigration is that this could also lead to conflict. People might discriminate a certain race and that would not be good.