The author of The Crossroads is Chris Grabenstein. He was born in Buffalo, New York. He wrote radio and television commercials for Burger King, Seven Up, Kentucky Fried Chicken, and Dr Pepper. He has also written screenplays and Muppet scripts. In his spare time, he's at the amusement parks riding rides. He won the Anthony Award for best first mystery for his first adult mystery Tilt A Whirl.
He also wrote Mad Mouse, Whack A Mole, Hell Hole, Mind Scrambler and Rolling Thunder. The Crossroads was his first children’s book. He wrote two more in the children’s book series. The second one is called The Hanging Hill, the third one is called The Smoky Corridor, and the final book is The Black Heart Crypt.
The story takes place in North Chester, Connecticut around Memorial Day in 2008.
Zack Jennings is the main character. He is an eleven year old shy boy who likes to have fun. He just wants to fit in. He sees ghost. He is looking for a fresh start in Connecticut so he can get away from his dead mother. She hated him and blamed him for her death.
Judy Magruder is Zack's step mother. She is a cool, caring, and understanding person. They have a good relationship and get along. She also sees ghost.
